ABOUT the
COLLECTION

Driven by the desire to create a collection which is bold, distinctive and individual, apaiser developed The Chameleon Collection in collaboration with award winning product designer Paul Flowers.

Like a Chameleon, the collection is adaptable – the simple lines compliment a range of architectural styles, yet the diverse colour palette allow expression of personality – to blend harmoniously and calmly within the environment, subtly catch the eye with a hint or suggestion, or be bold, and create a sculptural focal point in an explosion of colour.

With the belief that in this world of mass production and sameness, many of us seek something unique, unusual and extraordinary – the Chameleon Collection allows us to express our individuality – creating spaces which are beautiful, functional, and reflective of our own innate sense of style.

From the very first meeting it was clear to me the brand values of apaiser were a good fit with my own philosophy. apaiser uses the finest quality materials, has a relentless drive for perfection and an appreciation for good design. This shared belief I was confident would result in something special.

Paul Flowers is an internationally renowned, award winning product designer born and educated in the U.K. With an extensive portfolio, he has designed iconic products for leading international brands. Paul's approach to design is simple, his ethos that the product 'should function as beautifully as it looks'.
